

Application to the Medical Board of California for Initial Medical Licensure

Step-by-Step Guide for Interns

NOTE: The following guide applies to U.S. and Canadian medical school graduates that are currently in their first year of ACGME training or International Medical Graduates that have currently in their second years of ACGME training.

California requires that graduates of medical schools in the United States and Canada complete one year of ACGME training to qualify for the CA medical license or international medical graduates complete two years of ACGME training to qualify for the CA medical license.

US/Canadian medical school graduates must be licensed by the first day of their third year of training. International medical graduates must be licensed by the first day of their fourth year of training.*

DO NOT DELAY!

- California does not issue a training permit or temporary license. The only physician (MD) license is a full, unrestricted license to practice medicine.
- Individuals may not train at Loma Linda programs using out of state medical licenses.
- You can only obtain a DEA certificate once your California Medical License is issued. The sooner your license is issued, the sooner you can obtain your DEA certificate, and the sooner you can write orders.

* Your third year of ACGME training does not necessarily equate to PGY III. For example, an individual completing 2 years of pediatric residency and then starting psychiatry as a PGY I will need a CA medical license.
